Abstract. A system of positive economic incentives purely based on cryptocurrencies will allow the international community to raise the financial flows agreed in the Paris Agreement. These flows will serve to stimulate green initiatives around the world for compliance and immediate implementation of the agreement, and thus avoid trying to achieve it by other means having to take measures harmful to the economies of the signatory countries such as new taxes, regulations and sanctions. We propose a solution based on the creation of a blockchain whose main characteristics are the impossibility of splitting
